Contents of the January Bulletin.

This number of the bulletin contains the usual table of offenses known to the police for the month of January as reflected by the returns received by the Bureau of Investigation from contributing police departments throughout the country. Returns for the above month are also shown for several counties in various States, three of the four divisions of Alaska, and Porto Rico, while those received from State Police of a few of the States are also included. These miscellaneous returns, exclusive of figures submitted by police departments, are included in a separate table. In addition to the returns submitted for the month of January, the bulletin also contains a table showing the number of offenses known for various police departments for previous months, including returns from Alaska and the Philippines. These supplementary returns were received subsequent to the last issue of the bulletin.

"Offenses known to the police" include those crimes designated as Part I classes of the Uniform Classification, occurring within the police jurisdiction, whether they become known to the police through reports of police officers, of citizens, of prosecuting or court officials, or otherwise. They are confined to the following group of seven classes of grave offenses, shown by experience to be those most generally and completely reported: Felonious homicide, including (a) murder, non-negligent manslaughter, and (b) manslaughter by negligence; rape; robbery; aggravated assault; burglary—breaking or entering; larceny-theft, including (a) thefts of $50 and over, and (b) thefts of under $50; and auto theft.

"Offenses known to the police" include, therefore, all of the above offenses which are reported by the police departments of contributing cities, and not merely arrests or cleared cases.

The bulletin also contains tables indicating the extent of the reporting area by States for 1930, for January of 1931, and the area represented thereby. Tables are also included which show the average daily number of offenses of the designated classes for December and January, based on the figures received.

1,949 Cities Reported Currently in January.

During the present month 1,949 returns have been received from police departments for the month of January. These returns represent an aggregate population of 45,027,860. A considerable number of supplementary returns for various months of 1930 were also submitted, so that the number of cities which have at any time contributed figures on offenses known to the police reached 1,160, representing a population of approximately 46,564,425.

In the following table are shown the number and per cent of the cities and the number and per cent of the population of those cities of more than 10,000 inhabitants, from which returns were received for the month of January, 1931. The classification is based on the population data in the summary recently issued by the Bureau of the Census. In addition to the number of cities listed in the table there were 404 cities of a population less than 10,000 of an approximate population of 2,154,246, which also contributed in January. The population represented by the returns from counties and others is not included in this table.

Population groups	Total number of cities or towns	Cities filing returns		Total population	Population represented in returns

E. Cities 10,000 to 25,000.....	606	330	55	9,097,200	8,453,526	93

The above table does not include 404 cities of a population less than 10,000 aggregating a total of 2,154,246 from which returns were received for January, 1931.

Increase in Reporting Area Maintained in January.

The number of cities contributing crime statistics has shown a steady increase each month since the project was inaugurated, and this gradual expansion was maintained in January when returns were received from 33 additional cities which had not contributed previously.

The number of returns by States, received and published for the month of January, is shown in the following table:

Supplementary Table for 1930.

The total number of returns, including current and supplementary received and published for the year of 1930 is shown by States in the table which follows. These supplementary returns were furnished by cities which commenced contributing crime statistics subsequent to the first issue of the bulletin, and in that manner the reporting area established was maintained to a considerable degree.
